PANDEMIC RECOVERY TEACHING AND LEARNING: WHAT MATTERS NOW?

As we head into a new academic year, spending time as a community thinking about what we've learned about teaching and learning, ourselves, and our students is important as we aim to continue to develop our practice and foster student success. Join us for an afternoon of events focused on reflecting, restoring, and reinvigorating for the coming year.

Keynote
Dr. Peter Doolittle, Professor of Educational Psychology and Higher Education Pedagogy scholar

Reassessing, Reimagining, and Recalibrating Teaching and Learning

COMMUNITY CONVERSATION
Facilitator: Dr. Lindsay Masland

Join us from 2:30 - 4:30 for a series of facilitated conversations focused on reflecting, restoring, and inspiring each other with insights and approaches garnered during the past year. This 'world cafe' style event will give us time and space to come together as a community to share insights and approaches.

STUDENT VOICES
Facilitator: Dr. Jenny Snodgrass

This session, offered on Tues., Aug 10 from 10:00-11:30 (RCOE 124AB) will feature a panel of students who will share their pandemic learning experiences and insights.

Register for any of the events at: https://workshops.appstate.edu/course/info/hub-teaching-excellence-in-the-post-pandemic-classroom

August 9, 1:00 - 4:00, Reich College of Education, room 124

Center for Academic Excellence
APPALACHIAN STATE UNIVERSITY